

OHIO SCHOOL CHOICE SOLUTIONS

September 20, 2023

School closures during the COVID-19 pandemic had devastating effects on the educational progress of American schoolchildren, revealed deep inadequacies of the public-school monopoly, and left families feeling powerless about setting the direction of their children's education. Thankfully, school choice is growing in popularity in Ohio. The current budget proposal, which is pending approval, would expand school choice greatly. Having universal school choice in Ohio would mean that students are not constrained by county lines and can select from private, charter, and public options.

National test results for 2022 show that school closures during the Covid-19 pandemic had a harmful effect on American schoolchildren. For the first time in the history of the National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP), scores in reading and math fell by the largest margin in more than 30 years and students in Ohio were no exception. See Chart on page 2.

In 2022, according to the National Assessment of Education Progress (NAEP) in Ohio:

The reading level of 4th grade students who performed at or above the NAEP Proficient in was only 35%.

Black 4th grade students had an average reading score that was 35 points lower than that for White students.

Hispanic 4th grade students had an average reading score that was 30 points lower than that for White students.

Low-income 4th grade students had an average reading score that was 32 points lower than that for students from middle and high income families.

These test scores can have powerful consequences for a generation of children. Reversing these achievement losses will need aggressive action over the next several years. Parents need the ability to leave their government-mandated schools if necessary to help ensure their children have better academic opportunities. School choice is also shown to improve public schools by increasing accountability, fostering competitiveness, and boosting student outcomes. When parents can choose which option best fits their child's needs, whether that means opting to switch or not, students reap the benefits.

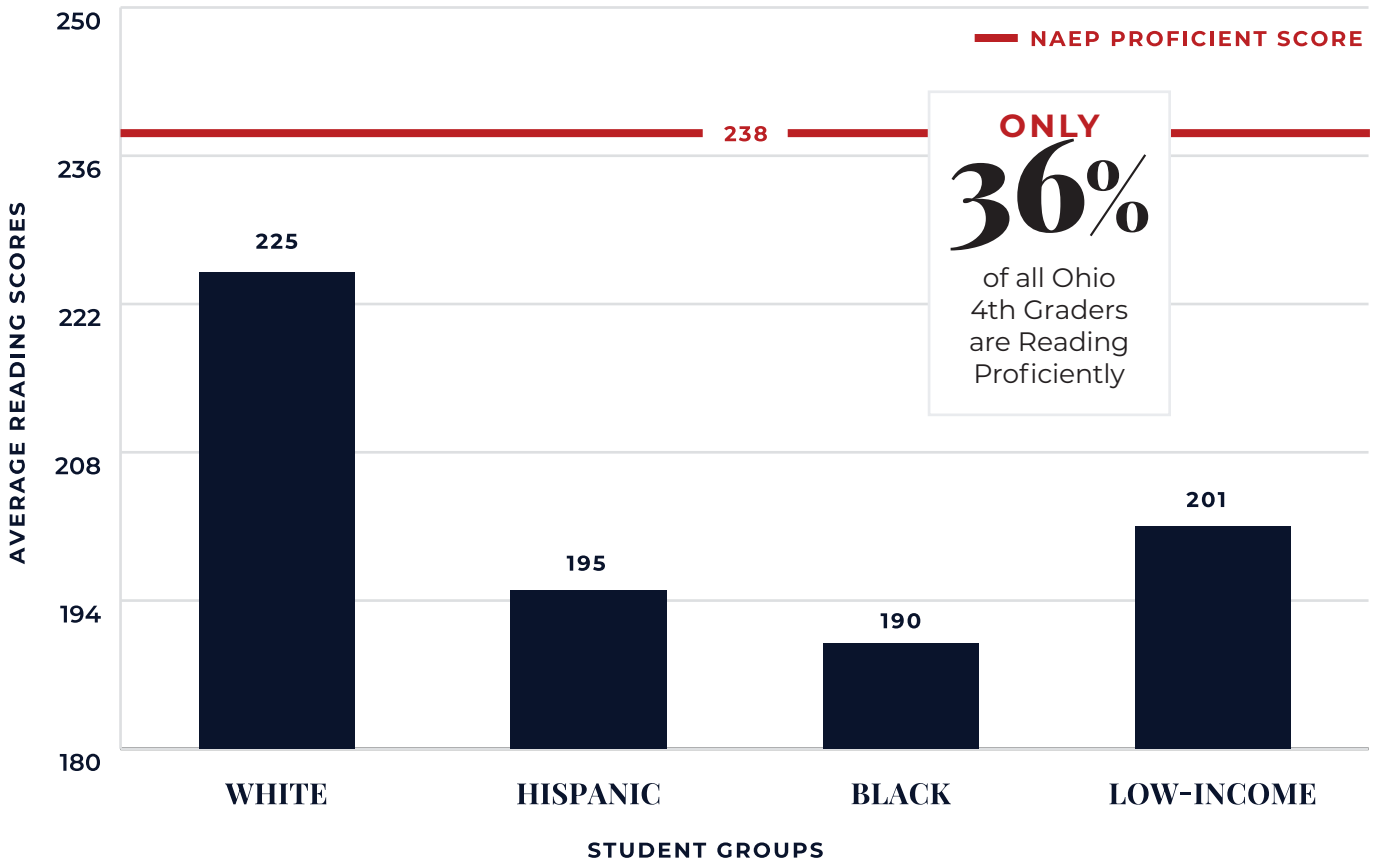

Unfortunately, Governor Roy Cooper has not been supportive of school choice, even threatening to declare a state of emergency during the year legislative session. Luckily, the legislature has protected school choice despite the governor's opposition to the policy. It is key to the educational future of young North Carolina children, including many who currently score "below basic" in reading, to provide educational options.

As the AFPI Center for Education Opportunity, Chairman Scott Turner repeatedly states, “No one knows the needs and interests of a child more than their parent or guardian.”

“ At AFPI, we believe that the purpose of education is to prepare Americans for the rights and responsibilities of citizenship. ”

School choice is representative of two core American values—freedom and opportunity. At AFPI, we believe that the purpose of education is to prepare Americans for the rights and responsibilities of citizenship. As public support for school choice continues to grow, students across the nation will have access to schooling that meets individualized needs, and educational outcomes will improve. Most importantly, parents will be empowered to have a stronger voice in the conversation about their child’s schooling. While the Biden administration and Gov. Cooper try to stall progress on school choice policies, the Center for Education Opportunity remains highly committed to the mission.
